JOB ANNOUNCEMENT Istanbul December-30-2009

SUBJECT Editorial Interns

LEA: Graduate Internship Opportunities

LEA, an international leading publication in art, science and technology and part of Leonardo, ISAST and MIT Press family, is looking for two skilled and enthusiastic recent graduates to join our team.

We commission new work, produce online and offline exhibitions, publish magazines and special issues as full color PDFs and for Print on Demand.

Sales & Marketing Internship

We are looking for an intern to assist in the planning, production and delivery of LEA marketing activities. This will include, but is not limited to, assisting in the organization and delivery of online and offline marketing materials, data collection and database management and contacting advertisers. The job will also include contributing to fundraising activities. The candidate should be a graduate or post-graduate interested in arts management and business management or someone interested in working with an international art and science organization.

Project Internship

We are looking for an intern to work with our Head of Projects to assist in the planning, production and delivery of LEA projects. These may take the form of commissions, exhibitions, research, education events, talks and special audience development projects.

The suitable candidate should have some knowledge and interest in contemporary art, curatorial studies and the interactions between art, science and technology. An interest in supporting the management of research projects would be welcome.
